It deals with Udayagiri and Khandagiri, and its old caves, which are among the most ancient in India. The sculptures are reproduced by a zincographic process, and are given in a series of plates adding considerably to our knowledge of the art of the Buddhist period. Bhuvaneshvara, Konarak, Yajapur, and Cuttack are included in this volume. Puri, or Jagannatha, forms an interesting chapter, giving not only a description of its architecture, but also its history, legendary and otherwise.—The Academy.

THE HOUSE DECORATOR AND SCHOOL OF DESIGN is the title of a new English penny weekly for painters, brass-workers, builders, carpenters, and all the multitude of other artisans who are in any way connected with the construction and fitting-up of dwellings.

THE MAGAZINE OF ART appears in an enlarged form with its October issue, at a somewhat higher price.

THE LIFE OF BLAKE, by Gilchrist, in the forthcoming re-edition, is to be considerably improved in the illustrations, according to the Athenaeum. An entirely new and very superior set of fac-similes of the Job designs will appear; there will be a new portrait of Mrs. Blake, after a design (hitherto unengraved) by her husband; the two wood-cut heads of Blake and his wife which appeared in the first edition will be redrawn and recut; and a new binding, adopting a fairy design by Blake, will be supplied. Mr. Herbert Gilchrist, a son of the biographer, will furnish designs of the living and sleeping rooms which the Blakes occupied in Fountain Court, Strand, and in which the painter-poet died, and of their cottage at Felpham, Sussex. The wood-cuts in the text will be printed on India paper.

M. SCHLUMBERGER's work on Himyaritic coins, entitled Le Trésor de San'a, is to be published this fall by M. Leroux.

E. WASMUTH, the well-known architectural publisher of Berlin, has published a Selection of Engravings after Jacques Androuet du Cerceau, in heliographic fac-similes by Ed. Baldus. The originals form part of the Destailleur collection (see page 323 of this volume of the REVIEW) lately purchased by the Prussian government for the Art Industrial Museum of Berlin. The publication is divided into six parts, devoted respectively to goblets and vessels; locksmithing; balustrades; vignettes (fleurons); cartouches (wall-decoration); and trophies and arms.
